

JOSHUA HETTWER

Joshua Hettwer is a musician, composer, arranger, educator and transcriber based in Eugene, Oregon. As a multi-woodwind instrumentalist, Joshua has played a wide range of repertoire varying from contemporary and classic jazz for combo and big band settings to new music and myriad orchestral works. His versatility has earned him many prestigious performing opportunities, most notably as the newest member of the Cherry Poppin' Daddies, with whom he plays alto saxophone and clarinet. He also performs regularly with the Emerald City Jazz Kings on clarinet and saxophone, and has performed as part of the Oregon Festival of American Music for its last three instances. In a small group setting, Joshua is a regular member of many local ensembles, including his own quartet, which showcases his ability as a composer by playing his original music. Joshua both bachelor's and master's degrees in jazz studies from the University of Oregon.
